

Nitzan Solan, B.Sc. is a chemical engineer and agri-tech specialist. She has experience in applying technological improvements to post-harvest solutions and global and food safety standards and performing research and development practices in the medical cannabis industry. She is an agriculture consultant and has extensive experience in planning projects and applying technological improvement for optimal growth quality and yield worldwide.