

Ram Fishman is an Assistant Professor of public policy at Tel Aviv University. Prior to coming to TAU, Ram was an assistant professor of Economics at George Washington University, and prior to that, a Giorgio Ruffolo Post-doctoral Fellow in Sustainability Science at the Harvard Kennedy School.

Ram's research is focused on sustainable agriculture, water scarcity and climate change, with an emphasis on developing countries. He has recently founded a research group at TAU that is running several empirical field projects Asia and Africa.

Ram holds a PhD in Sustainable Development from Columbia University, a M.Sc. in Physics from the Weizman Institute and a B.Sc. in Mathematics from Tel Aviv University.